SEA ISLAND COTTON

Sea Island cotton

Dedicated to those who strive for a luxurious approach

Prized by kings, queens and fashion enthusiasts Sea Island cotton is universally recognized as the finest cotton in the world. Even Queen Victoria and Edward VIII, as well as today's most fashionable Individuals have enthusiastically embraced the silky texture and exquisite luxury of fabrics made out of Sea Island cotton.

This costly fibre is grown in the West Indies, mainly on the island of Jamaica, where the climate is such that it flourishes best.

Sea Island cotton has a unique combination of strength, silky sheen and incredible unduplicated touch.

It can produce extremely long staple fibres of up to 50 mm in length, about 20 % longer than other fine cotton varieties.

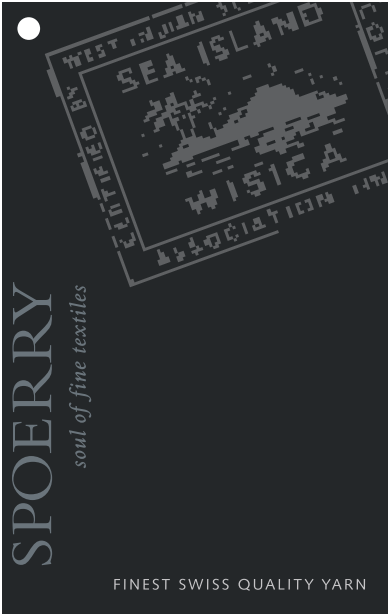

West Indian Sea Island cotton is picked by hand and processed using a gentle traditional method.

This is the only way in which the length of the fibres can be combined with their fine, homogenous structure.

In accordance with our philosophy we select the cotton manually, in the traditional way.

These efforts result in a unique sheen quality of cotton fibres with outstanding aspect, durability and an unbelievable feel.
